From
VICE CHANCELLOR

PROF. STEPHEN GITAHI KIAMA,
Vice-Chancellor, UoN

I hope this message finds you well. On the upcoming qualification ceremony on August 2, 2024, I would like to extend my warmest congratulations to the Chartered Institute of Public Relations (CIPR) Diploma and Certificate graduates from the University of Nairobi.

It is with great pride that we acknowledge the pivotal role that the CIPR accredited centre at our university has played in shaping and nurturing Public Relations and Communications professionals in the region since its inception four years ago. Our vision and leadership in launching this initiative have truly made a significant impact in the field.

The lessons from the Covid-19 global crisis and the current political situation in Kenya have underscored the indispensable need for organizations, especially government entities, to embrace strategic communication as a fundamental tool for effective management and engagement.

In light of these experiences, allow me to emphasize some key learnings that have emerged:

1. The crucial role of organizational listening in shaping communication plans and strategies.
2. The significance of research and data-driven insights in crafting impactful communications.
3. The necessity of cultivating a team of highly skilled and motivated communication professionals who are adaptable, embrace change, and are committed to continuous learning.
4. The centrality of building trust and fostering positive relationships with diverse audiences as key to the success of any communication strategy.

As ambassadors for our program and the University of Nairobi, I urge the graduating class to carry forward these lessons and principles into their professional endeavors, enhancing both our reputation and the wider field of communications.

I want to thank the lecturers for this program for their dedication and commitment. They have ensured that the professional standards for communication are up to date with global standards.

Once again, congratulations to the graduates on this significant achievement. We are excited to witness the positive impact you will undoubtedly make in the realm of Public Relations and Communications.

Best regards!

From
PROGRAMME COORDINATOR

JOHN A.O.ORINDI, MCIPR

Director, Corporate Affairs &
CIPR Programs Coordinator at UoN ATC

Congratulations to all the Diploma and Certificate graduates of the Chartered Institute of Public Relations class 2024! Your hard work, dedication, and commitment have paid off as you now hold the prestigious CIPR qualification. This achievement is a testament to your perseverance and resilience, qualities that are essential in the field of public relations.

The CIPR program is a significant milestone in your professional growth, opening doors to new opportunities and possibilities in your career.

One of the beauties of a PR qualification is its versatility, allowing you to practice anywhere in the world. As the industry continues to evolve rapidly, it is crucial to embrace continuous professional development and acquire new skills and knowledge, such as Artificial Intelligence, to stay ahead in your field. But more importantly, the networks you have acquired in the course of your interaction in class and the ones you are going to build with fellow professionals in future are important for your success in the industry. I encourage you to register and join as many CIPR networks as possible. The networks offer valuable peer support and opportunities for personal development.

Research is a fundamental aspect of designing effective PR plans and campaigns, as well as evaluating the outcomes of your PR efforts. I urge all graduates to prioritize research insights in their decision-making processes to ensure the success of their future endeavors. Ensure you are up to date with industry trends and use research not only in planning for your campaigns but also in evaluation of your campaigns and projects.

Finally, ensure that you subscribe and renew your membership every year and participate in the various training programs to earn the CPDs. Your continuous professional development program is a step towards getting a Chartered status.

Once again, congratulations on this remarkable achievement, and may your journey as CIPR graduates be filled with growth, success, and fulfillment. We are very proud to welcome all the graduates to join the University of Nairobi Association. Stay connected to the University of Nairobi.

Asante sana!

From the COURSE LEAD

NEEMA G. MUTEMI, MCIPR

CIPR Course Lead

University of Nairobi ATC

// Dear Graduands, I am so happy to welcome you to this side of CIPR Qualification. Well done! You have done yourselves and the whole CIPR East Africa fraternity proud.

I do not need to reiterate the hard work that you have put into this journey. What I want to speak to, is the spirit of excellence and commitment in the rest of your PR careers and journey as CIPR flag bearers. Recently, we onboarded a new class to the CIPR Diploma, and it was amazing to hear each one of them speaking in great admiration of the people who recommended CIPR to them. One by one they reiterated how they had experienced a superior level of quality in their work, and elevated level of confidence that was backed by critical analysis and evidence. These professionals who are admired across various sectors were also once in your shoes today. Breathing a sigh of relief and looking back in disbelief at the hurdles they had to overcome to become CIPR Qualified. I urge you to cherish this moment but also harness the same resilience that got you here to your every day work.

Going forward, bear in mind that you carry the responsibility for shaping not just the future of your organisations, but also of the PR industry. We are obviously living in uncertain times. For many of you who work in the public sector, this is probably one of the most defining moment in the history of East Africa's nations. Your skills in rebuilding public trust in institutions, repairing damaged reputations and regaining public goodwill to enable your organisations to survive have never been more in demand! The pace at which organisations will respond to the threat of digitally enabled misinformation and disinformation, and rise to the challenge of digital communication will define the rest of most of our careers. There are scary times ahead but also a very exciting time to be in the Communication and Public Relations industry!

Treat every assignment like it was a combined Unit 1 and Unit 3 assignment. Apply the PR theories, planning and evaluation models, you've now become conversant with, everyday. Develop justifications and critical analyses of ethical and socio-political and socio-economic factors for any proposals you make. Stand out! Take the PR profession forward! Set higher standards for your organization and your industry!

#OccupyManagement #OccupyBoards and #RejectMediocrity because you are now #CIPRQualified!

TESTIMONIALS

ASHLEY KIGEN

Public Relations Specialist,
Compassion International

"My experience with the CIPR program has been incredibly transformative, personally and professionally. The comprehensive curriculum gave me a deep understanding of public relations principles and practices, equipping me with the necessary skills to excel in my career. Engaging with industry experts and networking with peers has broadened my perspective, allowing me to approach challenges with innovative solutions. My confidence has grown through hands-on experience and practical assignments, and my strategic communication abilities have significantly improved. The CIPR program has undeniably been instrumental in my career development, enabling me to effectively contribute to my organization's goals and make a meaningful impact in public relations."

CATHERINE KIMONDO

Credit Controller,
Eldoret Hospital

"Earning the CIPR qualification has helped me in various ways like my skills set has improved, I can develop and execute effectively a task at hand. Also, my confidence level grew particularly when it came to presentations, I was shy thanks to this course for it was a game changer."

ESTHER NEKESA

Senior Communications Officer
University of Nairobi

"Nothing good comes easy, and this was so good! Going through CIPR Professional Diploma especially at my place of work completely changed my perspective of Public Relations and Communication Management. It clarified my vision and expectations from professionals like myself. I can confidently say that I can offer leadership and fully support organizational objectives through PR and communication Management. I have learnt the place of research and importance of strategic communication in any organization for mutual benefit."

PAULINE OUTA, MPRSK

Administrator,
Kaimosi Friends University

"My CIPR journey was exciting and equally humbling. It gave me a superb learning opportunity to gain crucial and real time knowledge in the dynamic field of PR. This qualification has equipped and empowered me with insightful professional skills as a PR practitioner and has boosted my confidence at the workplace. The PR planning, management, measurement and evaluation expertise attained in this course is unparalleled."

MARIA GLORIA KARUNGI

Uganda Registration Services Bureau

"My experience in CIPR class and attainment of this qualification have empowered me to elevate my practice as a PR practitioner, ensuring that I can deliver results-driven communication strategies that align with organizational objectives and uphold the highest ethical standards."

MAUREEN KARUGU

Corporate Affairs Coordinator
Nairobi City Water & Sewerage Company Ltd.

"I am elated to be graduating as a globally recognised #CIPRQualified professional. The course has changed how I view campaigns. Before embarking on any communication plan I first find out what the needs of my target audience are, as a rule of thumb, which then leads to measurable objectives and outcomes.

It has definitely deepened my PR professional skills, given me a confidence boost and broadened my perspective. Happy to be #CIPRQualified."

ADOW KALIL JUBAT

A Freelance PR Consultant
based in Garissa.

"Unlike my other PR courses, the CIPR course taught me how to put theory into practice through challenging research-based tutor-marked assignments. Before undertaking this great course I had no idea how to use PR theories in my everyday PR job. This course taught me that PR is beyond the mundane of hoisting organizations' banners at events, writing a press release and spinning. I have learnt the importance of PR in the realisation of an organisation's long-term and short-term strategic objectives.

The course also rejuvenated my writing skills of looking at things from a fresh angle. Since I completed the course I had at least three of my thought leadership opinion pieces published in the local leading newspapers."

KHADIJA NAKAKANDE

Head Communication and Public Relations
National Agricultural Advisory Services (NAADS)

"I joined the CIPR Professional PR Diploma course in 2022 and my aim was to gain more practical experience and insight in the Public Relations profession. I joined with an experience of eight (8) years as a PR practitioner and I thought with these 8 eight years I knew a lot about PR and communication. This course proved to me that there's a lot I didn't know. From what I learnt, I am now running successful and impactful PR campaigns for my organisation. I can say this course tested my intellect and ability to analyse communication issues. I am now a better communicator who adds value to my organisation. Thank you CIPR."

WATSEMWA ESERI (Ms.)

Public Relations Advisor
Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) Uganda

"I have grown and developed as a PR professional. The topics I was exposed to have provided solutions to most of my PR queries as I carry out my duties at my place of work. Initially, I decided to pursue CIPR to gain the Chartered PR Practitioner status and credibility in the industry, but ended up with a plethora of skills, knowledge, practical experience, ease in completing work-based assignments, and managing and evaluating PR campaigns. I also benefited from the knowledge of other professionals in the industry during lectures and discussions. This has been key for my professional development to keep up with current industry trends and best practices. The experience has contributed to the improvement of the PR status of my workplace and has imparted a great deal of confidence to take on PR tasks in any organisation or institution."

ANN WAITHAKA

Senior Communications Officer,
African Population and Health Research Center

"I am delighted to have completed the CIPR Professional Diploma. Since kick-starting my career, this is one of the programs that I longed to undertake and I am happy to say that the practicability and experience has met my expectations. The course has significantly enriched my understanding of public relations, equipping me with advanced skills in strategic communication, digital communications, and crisis management. The knowledge and experience gained will undoubtedly enhance my professional practice, enabling me to contribute effectively to the dynamic field of public relations and communications. I most enjoyed the assignments and being able to work on past or current issues in my organization. I am grateful to the faculty and my peers for their support and collaboration throughout the journey."

PROVIA NANGOBI (UG)

Head PR and Corporate Affairs
Uganda Registration Services Bureau

"CIPR was like bootcamp to me, taking me back on ground and reminding me of why I chose Communication and PR as a profession. You get shaken to look into what you are currently doing in practice and how to go beyond the normal and expected. The assignments alone were a do or die experience that left you wiser with knowledge and pushed you beyond your limits to dedicate time, skill and experience at ensuring your paper was articulate and accorded you a pass, excellent pass or on the worst case scenario the need to rewrite until you got it right. I loved the class interactions and the friendships created out of group work. I would recommend the class to anybody in PR practice any day any time. Bravo to the 4th CIPR classmates and let's keep pushing our profession forward with excellent work and bringing passion to all we do in the field of PR."

JOAN KIFUKO

Communication Specialist
Governance Systems International

"I've always been deeply passionate about Public Relations. Pursuing the CIPR Professional Diploma has proved to be a challenging and rewarding journey for me. This experience has enabled me to understand modern PR practices comprehensively and significantly honed my strategic skills in planning, measuring, and evaluating PR campaigns. These newfound abilities have enhanced my daily work and played a crucial role in devising impactful strategies. I am incredibly eager to apply this enhanced knowledge toward excelling in thought leadership and improving the evaluation of communication campaigns."

DOKORIA DENIS GEORGE

Head of Public Relations/Spokesperson
Uganda Development Corporation (UDC)

"As I reflect on my journey of the CIPR-UoN course, I am grateful for the transformative impact the course has had on my career trajectory. The comprehensive exploration of the dynamic field of public relations while blending theoretical insights with practical applications, challenged me to think critically, develop strategic insights, and apply best practices in various scenarios. Armed with this knowledge, I secured a job as a Head of PR in a big government agency where I sit in management and contribute towards the organizations strategy."

SANDRA MARGARET CHAO

Communications Specialist

"My diploma in CIPR journey in 2021 had opened up my mind to international trends in public relations and legitimised what I was already practicing; when an opportunity to pursue a second diploma in crisis communications opened up, I jumped on it without a second thought.

Every organization, regardless of the sector they operate in, is faced with a crisis at some point in time. While some are minor and manageable, others have the potential to not only ruin their public reputation but wipe them out of existence in totality. Individual brands also face threats from the social media platforms they thrive on in this era of exponential social media growth, creating vast opportunities for crisis communications practitioners."

EDWIN MACHARIA

Communications and PR Professional

"Nitin Nohria, former dean of Harvard Business School once said "Communication is the real work of leadership".

The course has made me a better communicator and leader. I look to the future with great optimism."

BARBARA KAMUSIIME

Senior Public Relations Officer,
Uganda National Bureau of standards.

"Studying CIPR was eye-opening for me, regarding the new PR and communication trends. Studying over the weekends fit well with my full-time work schedule as well as family.

The university made sure that they recorded all the lessons taught and this made studying so easy because one would go back and listen to the lectures that may not have been well understood.

Unit Two was both easy and hard at the same time, the topics were so interesting especially topics on the use of social media to enhance PR and Communication but the assignment was hard because I failed the assignment at my attempt but this did not deter me from proceeding with the course. Ms Neema Mutemi who was one of the course facilitators helped me understand the course work and this enabled me to pass the paper on my second attempt.

The course is clearly post-graduate/master level, so one has to be prepared to do the research and put in the time for the assignments. Thankfully, our tutors provided a lot of resources which made it easy for us. Completing the course has widened my knowledge of PR and it has also improved my work output."
